MERCANTILE AND MONEY ARTICLE.
Monday Evening.

THE Oriental Bank Corporation have given notice that in one month from the 30th of June time interest will cease to be allowed on current account balances. Two per cent. on the daily balance at credit of a floating deposit will cease; but deposits requiring three, six, and twelve months' notice of withdrawal will continue to receive interest at 3.5, and 5 per cent. respectively. The following from the Melbourne Argus of Thursday last: "It is in reference to the refusal of a Melbourne Bank to receive the overvalues issued by the Sydney branch of the Royal Mint as a legal tender; and a paragraph in reference to which we this morning (Monday) copied from the Melbourne Morning Herald, the Argus says—

"One of our correspondents mentioned yesterday a circumstance which, it is, I think, the most gross of inadvertence to trade, if it has not been so generally settled;—that a florist dealer who has the least sent a number of the new acted on the church ground, for the purpose of holding a parish school, and a competent schoolmaster and a mistress have just been appointed, through the recommendation of the Rev. H. S. King, to the above charge.

then a request that the account might be placed to his credit, then the bank officials refused to receive the coin."

As the lady's account here is not at present a legal tender here, she has a right to open up to the bank in question. It could be placed there every day to the credit of a client, it is a silver coin, while, at the same time it was not in a position to tender them as cash when his cheque were brought to the counter. The bank might have granted a credit on them, as regular, but could not have passed them, absolutely, to credit in its account.

The square laid before the Legislative Council with reference to the bank was not published in full in our issue of yesterday, and we wish to state that the bank and its officers are not interested in solving the question of the coin.
